these men are far in advance of those at the South; in fact, there is no chance at comparison. The Southern army is poorly uniformed, peorly disciplined, and I judge from what little I have seen of them on parade, know but little of tactics or field operations.

Hera'd Correspondent—I learn from people that have been South, that a large portion of their troops are boys, and very young men. How do these men compare with them, as to size and apparent ability endure service?

Mr. War !—Let me say that, in my opinion the Southern men, as a go eral thing, are taller and larger m n—taller by perhaps half a shead and larger every way.

Herald Correspondent—Is that any advantage to them in battle?

Altr. Russel—If their correspondent—

Air. Russel—If their courage and endu-rance depends upon their size alone, it is an advantage; but when you consider that it a general firing, a large object is more apt to get hit than a small one, it is natural to think that the real advantage would be on the who thereone.

Herald Correspondent—In the general de-ortment of the troops, is there any marked difference?

Mr. Ward—A very great difference, sir. These men appear to be all sober, substantial fellows, loving discipline, while upon the part of those at the South, lobserved a great prevalence of drunkenness; the men there are disorderly, and the officers, in a great measure, either do not understand their management or are incompetent to enforce discipline. I am inclined to think, however, that the personal prowess of the Southerners is superior to your Northern men. They will enter the battle with more bravery and reckless daring; out discipline and coolness will compensate for any want of personal prowerss.

Miscellaneous Items

It is stated that Oliver Cromwell always struck at the right moment—never too soon for evidence and never too late for success. Cr mwell was one time surrounded by men who still adhered to Charles II., then on the who still adhered to Charles II., then on the continent. The Protector gave permission for one of them to travel on the condition that he should not see the royal exile. On this gentieman's return to E gland, Cromwell summoned him to an interview, add he denied having seen the king. "When you met Charles Stuait, who put out the caudles?" asked Oliver. The nobleman was quiet, and, making no reply, Oliver asked the holdeman for his hat, and, cutting it with a knife, took from the liming a letter from the king. The nobleman went to the tower.

The Custom House officers of Resancon

The nobleman went to the lower.

The Custom House officers of Besancon have just made an important seizuire, having laid their hands on a wagon laden with blocks which had been hollowed out and filled with Indian shawls. They found, thus concealed, one hundred and out hity shawls, estimated in value at upwards of 100,000f., and the duty would have been about 20,000f. Connecticut has been noted for its wooden nutmegs, but it will now be known down Southfor a greater achievement. A gun has been invented which will enable a regiment of a thousand men armed with it to throw fifteen thousand bulls in only mind e, and filteen new charges can be put into the gui in less than one minute. In van hour 450,000 bullets can be thrown. 000 bullets can be thrown.

The Siecle newspaper, Partis, has no less than twenty eminent writers employed on it, each having an appropriate department, and some of them employ secretaries. This is the luxury of editing.

The army under the Duke of Wellington lost at the battle of Waterloo nearly 10,000 killed and wounded. The loss of the Prussian army was nearly 7,000 more. The army of the Duke consisted of 49,608 infantry, 12,-402 cavalry and 5,645 artillerymen with 156 relates a conversation which recently took place between himself and Mr. Russell, the correspondent of the London Times, which we consider of sufficient importance to reproduce. It occurred on the occasion of a visit of the latter to one of the encampments. The writer in the Herald says:

A correspondent of the New York Herald relates a conversation which recently took place between himself and Mr. Provided 1947 men.

During the parade of the last company, your correspondent conversed with Mr. Russell and Mr. Ward freely. As nearly as my memory serve me (i took no notes of the conversation) it was as follows:

Herald Correspondent—Mr. Russell, you will find that the soldiers of this encampment are a fair specimen of those composing this brigade. How do they compare with those of the South in regard to personnel, and the general qualifications of the soldier?

Mr. Russell—In the points you have mentioned, so far as I have been able to observe, these men are lar in advance of those at the South; in fact, there is no chance at comparison. The Southern army is north uniformed.

The Church Appropriations:

This question, which has attracted considerable attention in both Colonies, is explained at last, so far as the appropriation for the church at Port Douglas is concerned. The Rev. Mr. Gammage in his letter in this issue states: 1. That he drew the petition for a grant from the "pub ic funds" to erect a church there. 2. That very nearly all the inhabitants of Port Douglas signed the petition. 3. That His Excellency granted the prayer of the petition (that is, £10),). 4. That Bishop Hills "from first to lathas had nothing whatever to do with the business." It is satisfactory to know how the matter originated and how it stands. With the facts of the question before the pullic everybody can make up their opinion on the subject. We cannot, however, allow the Freehold, £330; Leasehold, £633. Now why that matter to pass without expressing what we believe to be the universal opinion in both Colonies. No one questions the right of Mr. nor the right of the people of Douglas to fellow-c.tizens require, is not considered eligible sign it. But everybody does quistion the in the estimation of the "Solon of the Bay." principle which the petition seeks to establish. Public feeling is h.s..le-not to religion-but hostile to the principle of granting ernment, Fort and Wharf streets? And who, in any money whatever from the "public funds" for religious uses.

Mr. Gammage says that the "articles and letters are more characterized by the frankness of their expression, than by the benevolence of the sentiments they embody." Does he wish the public to believe there is any want of "benevolence" in opposing a principle that is calculated to arouse a sentiment hostile to religion in the breasts of all not wedded to "church and state?" The mission of religion is to breathe " peace and good will to all men." The mission of appropriations from the public funds for religious uses is to breed "discord and ill-will" among our colon-sts. Deny it who can? Such being the case, " benevolence" would be misplaced were it to smile upon a principle that cannot but array cost against sect -a principe that would drag religion into NEW the arrena of politics in a community where there is no earthly show of ever uniting the church with the state. If any want of Christian benevolence has been shown, it is attributable to those who encouraged a grant from the public funds to the Douglas church, full well knowing what could not fail to be the inevitable result.

Mr. Gammage says that the inhabitants of Douglas "pay no insignificant fraction of the revenue." The public are left to conclude that Douglas pays a large proportion of the revenue. Such is an untair inference. The population varies from 70 to 150. What they pay is insign ficant; for a difference must be made between revenue collected there on goods consumed elsewhere, and revenue collected there on goods consumed by the "people of Douglas." Because a large revenue be collected in one place, that is no good reason why it should be appropriated to churches there. If it is, then Westminster has the best claim of all the British Columbia towns. The position of Mr. Gammage on this point, then, is a more sophism-is an untenable one. We are glad to learn that "the Bishop of the diocese, from first to last, has had nothing to do with the business," We are pleased to find that the doctrine of voluntaryism enunciated in his inaugural has not been shelved. We admire consistency in public men, and in no class of public men more so than in those whose "king.lom is not of this world." An explanation is wanted, however, as to whether the Douglas church is under the control of "the Bishop of the diocese" or not. If it is, and if the Monday, August 5th, 1861, funds appropriated for the church be accepted and expended upon it, there will be a want of consistency. Acceptance will do violence to voluntaryism; and the expenditure of the money upon the church, if under the control of the Bishop, will lay him open Balances of English Case Goods, to a charge of inconsistency. We confess that we see no middle course to pursue. Either the appropriation has to be rejected or the Douglas church not numbered among Episcopal edifices. We shall wait for more light on this point, as well as an explanation as to the origin of the Lillooet church appro-

Letter of Rev. James Gammage on Appropriation to Port Douglas Church.

DOUGLAS, B. C., July 29, 1861. EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST :- Sir, -Much of the valuable space in some of the different newspapers of this and the neighboring Colony has

THE BRITISH COLONIST reference to the appropriation of a sum of public money for religious purposes by His Excellency the Governor.

These articles and letters are more characterized by the frankness of their expression than by the benevolence of the sentiments which they embody. They contain also some statements which are no true. I shall, therefore, feel obliged if yeu will give the public the following correct information, in order that they may not be misled by falsitles: In April last, I drew up a petition asking His Excellency to grant, "from the public funds," assistance towards the erection of a church at this assistance towards the erection of a church at this place. The people of Douglas, who are a portion of the population of Enrish Columbia, and pay, I believe, no insignificant fraction of the public revenue, signed that petition. The thing was not done hurriedly—the signing occupied several days, and many opinions were publicly expressed as to the probabilities of success. The petition was not signed by temporary sejourners, but by permanent residents, and very nearly all of them. Only two persons refused to give their mans.

It has been stated that "parties were induced to sign it, with the understanding that the appeal was intended for the private purse of His Excellency." This, sir, is untrue, and those persons who make such assertions, arrive at conclusions from imaginary preumies—"measuring my wheat with their own burbel." Under existing circumstances, I should most decidedly decline leading the people of Douglas as a band of mendicants to stances, I should most decidedly decline leading the people of Douglas as a bind of mendicants to solicit the private aid of His Excellency; and I think the majority of the people of Douglas would also decline appearing in that position.

In conclusion, I may say that His Excellency the Governor has favorably received the petition of the people of Douglas, and has granted them their request. His Excellency has also liberally subscribed towards the same object from his private purse.

His Lordship, the Bishop of the diocese, from first to last has had nothing whatever to do with the business.

I remain, sir, yours, etc., JAMES GAMMAGE.

Councillor's Qualification.

What is to become of all the business men who will be compelled to lease from the gentlemen who own the favored spots on Yates, Johnson, Goveriment, Fort and Wharf streets? And who, in order to have a pleasant family residence, should be compelled to lease and build upon one of those pleasantly situated sites across the Bay a residence worthy of the site, or on some of those deligniful spots for villas that may be found on what is known as the Governor's fam? None of those gentlemen, it matters not what amount of capital they may have invested in business or buildings, nor what am ount of intelligence they may possess, they are not qualified to sit as councilmen. And win? Because, forsooth, they have not a lot somewhere worth at the present time 59£! Well, thinks be we have a Legislatuce Conneil and a Governor who, notwithstanding all a certain gentleman may say to the contrary, be will find that they will have sense enough to prevent many of those obnoxious clauses found in the Bill becoming a law.

why could not the qualification for councilmen Why could not the qualification for councilmen be the same as that which makes a man liable to pay taxes by the late Assessment Act, if properly qualification must be had to the required amount.

5 rt to 200 m 8 ever, one 2 duty to other the manouvering of some gentlemen. They will have a poor account to render of their stewardship 1 lear at the rext day of reckoning.

Selling Liquor Legally to Indians.

INDIAN MISSION, August 3, 1861. EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST:—The Bill recently introduced into the Colonial Legislature for the purpose of legalizing the sale of liquor to Indians, one which should not pass into law without th calm consideration and patient thought of every inhabitant of this Colony. It is a measure which, if 'carried, will, I fear, prove most disastrous and ruinous to white pre-eminence, to the persons and property of Her Majesty's loyal subjects, and to the whole Indian race. This is a bold statement, and one which not be advanced without solid grounds. I pray the public, then, to consider the following arguments in support of it, and judge if they be of no weight.

1. The sale of liquor to Indians will be disastrous to white pre-eminence.

This proposition stands upon a threefold basepolitical, rational, and religious. A sound Indian policy must ever embrace these two main elements: A firm and constant assertion of the superiority of our power, and a resolute, though mild. enforcement of our orders. Let go the former and the Indian will despise the order; enforce not the order and the Indian will doubt the power. In either case we become guilty of the political error which gives a fair opportunity to the savage to in-Tringe our laws, and exposes the civilized to the consequences of that infringement. A graver mistake in statesmanship can scarcely be conceived claim, and 150 feet back from the water, are than to afford an occasion, however slight, to the making the same amount with a single savage for venturing upon opposition to our rule. Let him but know our power, and feel the firmness of the hand that wields it, and see our desire for his real good evinced by sound and rational efforts for his advancement, and the work of his civilization will proceed with comparative case. But only let this Bill be passed into law, and what will he see? He will perceive in a moment what has been unhappily stated by the mover of the Bill-that we lack the power to enforce our laws. How will powers as this announcement of our Legislature dawns upon it! How will the assembly of chiefs in Heathen council glory in their ability to carry in Heathen council glory in their ability to carry their point in spite of the collective wisdom of our Christian representatives! What a howl of gratified delight will creep stealthly from tribe to tribe, until swelling and surgi; g like an angry sea triumphing in its victory over the shattered wreck, it shall echo from rock to rock in their favored locality! Thus, politically this new measure is a most decided blunder. It is a virtual acknowledgement of our own weakness—a confession of our incapacity to compel their obedience, and, in consequence, as suicidal a step as it is possible for us to take.

our incapacity to compel their obedience, and, in consequence, as suicidal a step as it is possible for us to take.

And is it rationally any better? Not a whit. It is just tantamount to this: My son is bent upon cutting his throat; I lack the power to enforce my prohibitory orders; to remedy the matter I give him leave to cut away, trusting to his wisdom to stay the razor when he shall be beginning to faint. The Indian smuggles whisky because the Colonial Lecislature cannot pay a police force of sufficient strength to look after the disorderly whites. They drink this abominable stuff and die instanter. In many cases those who live fight and break each other's heads. To remedy this, all the machinery of state and all the majesty of law are put into motion to effect what?—the enforcement of law and the maintenance of our superiority by that enforcement? Nothing of the sort. But only to effect this:—'My Siwash subjects, I am very sorry you are such unruly boys; you are too cunning and persevering for me; hence I give in. G., boys, drink where you like and when you like, fear not the police. Only remember, I depend upon your good sense and the benevolence or those who sell, that you will never take too much, if you do, you shall be caged till you get sober!' A rational method, sir, of convincing the Indian of our superior power and of endeavoring to raise him from his present degradation. If neither the Colonial Legislation nor the Imperial Government can raise a revenue to provide for Indian supervision with ut resorting to this method, better far that it never be raised.

It may be objected that the existing law tampers with the liberty of the surject. But, sir, the right to liberty in the sense in which the word is here used, rests upon the caupacity for liberty. The capacity being wanting no one dreams of conceding the right. Such is the case with the insanc, children etc. That in the case of Indians the

with the liberty of the surject. But, sir, the right to liberty in the sense in which the wood is here used, rests upon the capacity for liberty. The capacity being wanting no one dreams of conceding the right. Such is the case with the insance, children etc. That in the case of Indians the capacity is wanting, cant ot be doubted by any well balanced and unprejudiced mind. No sane man wonld argue, that because their reserves are not placed in their own hands to be disposed of according to their pleasure, therefore their rightfullberty is being tampered with. If in the one case they are rightly considered and treated as children, much more so is it needed in the other. In the case of their lands, they could only be robbed in a greater or less degree whereas, in the case of the liquor they would probably be robbed as well, and be poisoned besides. Any man who asserts the right to liberty in this matter, must first prove the existence of the capacity, which no man Irving here would attempt to do.

And if thus both ponitically and rationally this would be a disastrous and suicidal step, much more plainly is it so upon religious grounds.

The Great Ruler of the universe hath in his mysterious Providence granted to the British crown this fair portion of His earthly territory, He hath not given it to us, however, merely that possessed of its fertile valleys we should grow rich and forget the giver. Connected with the gift was a solemn responsibility, that we should extend unto the native owners of the soil in return for its broad acres, all the blessings of our civilization and Christianity. It is our mission here not only to cultivate the prairies but to civilize and Christianize the people of this land. Hence we are bound by the very terms on which we enter here to protect those unturored minds from the frauds and vices of our people, and to extend unto then all the benefits and blessings of our superior position. There is nought sir, in all the range of expediency which can justify us in placing within the reach of lation of such a picture with horror and dismay, and prays that a truer and purer wisdom may be granted to our rulers, ere they enact so fearful a and prays that a truer and purer wisdom may be granted to out rulers, ere they enact so fearful a measure.

2. And shall it not be disastr. us to the persons and property of Her Majesty's subjects? When canoes laden with whisky can lawfully travel wheresever their indian owner may wish to steer, where will life and property any more be safe? Behold a strong party of Indians flushed with their newly acquired vectory over the laws, the policy, the power of the whites, wel, provided with an ample supply of whisky, if you please of the very best quality; behold them, I say, descending upon some of our small outlaying settlements and exhibiting the value of their newly acquired laurels to the confusion of honest men! With brains raaddened by constant and deep potations, and heatts swelling with pride and self-conceit, they will be li ely to give our gunboats more to do than may afterwards be considered advisable. And even here we shall feel it too. The native police who have hitherto done so much good will immediately become extinct, if not in name at least in fact. The whole town and neighborhood will be converted into a gigantic drinking saloon, with here and there is eage where the wildest and most disorderly are locked up for safe keeping. Town and country will alike be infested by tipsy savages, who, provided they can stagger along, will be protected by the laws of Christian Britain!

3. And as for the Indian race, will not the effect on them be disastrous in the extreme? This new measure will be nothing else than an invitation to the whole Indian population to commit a speedy suicide. It is placing in their hands the instrument of death, while we know full well they have but just wit enough to kill themselves! But this letter has already for outrun reasonable bounds. The solemn importance of the subject must be my excuse. I am, Sir. I am, Sir,
Your obedient serv't.,
ALEX C. GARRETT.

LATER FROM THE MINES,

The stamer Otter, Capt. Mouat, arrived at her wharf on Saturday afternoon from New Westminster, with thirty passengers and $25,000 in gold dust.

The news from Cariboo is meagre; but such as it is, we glean from private letters

Provisions are plentiful at Quesnello City; pack-trains are running regularly to the head of Antler Creek, and it is reported that the water has fallen so much as to lay bare the lowest bars, on which many men had gone to work.

Rose & Co., working in a cañon where the Antler is confined to a narrow channel by the bed-rock rising abruptly on either side. have put in sluices and were making as high as 30 and 40 ounces per day; while Smith, Handricks & Co., in a flat just over this making the same amount with a single rocker. Many others are doing equally as well in bank and stream.

The banks of Salt Spring Creek are crowded with miners, who lately rushed thither from Antler and other creeks. Pay-gravel four feet deep is found, and prospects obtained varying from four to six bits to the pan. Many rockers were at work on this bucks with an ax, rolled their bodies into the the Indian mind rise and swell with an idea of its creek, but the average yield of precious metal could not be learned.

The trial of Robert Wall, for the murder of Dr. Fifer at Yale, commenced on the 2d inst. The prisoner pleaded guilty to the indict- Court. ment; but subsequently, through the advice of Chief Justice Begbie, withdrew the plea, and the trial proceeded. The evidence was straightforward and uncontradictory, and it was thought that the prisoner would be convicted of wilful murder by the jury without leaving their seats.

The news from Similkan.een is discouraging. Most of the miners have left for Okanagan Lake or Nez Perces. There is no prospect of the wagon-road from Hope being completed this year.

The steamer Urion has proved an entire success. She has been to Port Douglas, and her owners intend sending her to Yale and Hope.

The Late Calamity.

Coroner Dickson on Saturday summoned a jury and proceeded to inquire into the circumstauces attending the killing of James Jamieson and Daniel Foley, who lost their lives by the explosion of the steamer Cariboo on Friday morning last. The jurors are: James Reid, foreman; Geo. Richardson, Peter McQuade, Thomas Patrick, Chas. Halsey, James Carswell, John Work, James Langiey, Adam Watson, James Thompson, Chas. Pololock, Charles Vetch, Jas. Thorne, and Thomas Martin.

After being sworn in, the jury viewed the bodies of the deceased, and then visited the wreck of the ill-fated steamer, lying on the beach opposite the Songish village, which having examined, returned to the jury-room and expressed a desire that the engineers from the fleet might be summoned to make au examination of the machinery and also to give testimony. The jurous also expressed their disapprobation at the disturbance of the machinery by the parties having the wreck in charge.

At six o'clock this morning, the jury will proceed again to the wreck and make a thorough inspection.

The ruin of the hull is most complete; hardly a knee or stanchion that is not broken or twisted out of shape, and even the stem is broken in two. The machinery is also rendered useless.

The disaster was the topic of general conversation about town on Saturday : and vesterday the dreadful circumstances attending it were touched upon in feeling and appropriate terms from the pulpits of the various churches.

Capt. Jamiesco, some five months ago, made a will, which he deposited with Capt. Irving, of the Gov. Douglas, an old and tried friend. The document, we suppose, will be opened to-day.

On Saturday, several Wharf street merchants started a subscription list, and succeeded in obtaining $80, which they presented to seven Italians, whose timely assistance with their boats on the night of the explosion was the means of saving several lives. These men are certainly entitled to great credit for their humane and success. ful exertions towards the rescuing of several passengers. They report that one of the boats was hailed by a man swimming to the water a short distance from the wreck. The boat proceeded to the unfortunate's assistance, but before he could be reached the water had closed over him, and he sank to rise no more.

Of one hundred and eighty mats of rice in the hold when the steamer left the wharf. not a single mat has been recovered; nor was a single grain of rice visible on Saturday when the hulk was high and dry on the

Mr. Ramage, of New Westminster, blown through the side of the cabin into the water. but afterwards rescued by the Italians, undressed before retiring to his berth, and left his clothes, containing some $:00 in money and jewelry, by his side. The clothes were afterwards picked up, but neither the money nor the jewelry have been found.

Mr. Stewart, carpenter of the boat, had $300 in gold coin in the pockets of his pants, which were lost.

On good authority we are informed that while the Cariboo was proceeding up Fraser River on her first trip, when just above Old Langley, something was observed to be wrong in the machinery, and Captain Jamieson went to the engine-room, threw up the safety-valve, and assisted in drawing the fire. She was then anchored, and did not start again until the next morning. It was given out on board that the pump for supplying the boiler with water was out of order.

ARREST OF ALLEGED WHOLESALE MUR-DERERS .- On Saturday night last Indian policeman Winnets appeared at the police barracks, with his truncheon in one hand and a trembling prisoner in the other, and demanded admittance, which was granted. Soon after, "Jim," another Indian policeman, appeared with a squaw in custody, and was also admitted within the gloomy portals of Her Majesty's prison. Winnets then made a complaint against both prisoners, to the effect that some time ago the Indian had caught six bucks and two squaws asleep at some point along the Straits, and that, assisted by the squaw, he had deliberately gone to work and chopped off the heads of the Straits, and seized and carried the two squaws into captivity. On this horrible charge the prisoners were locked up, and will have an examination to-day in the Po-

ASSAULT AND CONFESSION. - E. Lexis appeared at the station house on Saturday night and gave himself into custody, saying that he had assaulted an annoying Siwash with a stone, cutting his head severely. He was placed in a cell to await trial to-day.

SEIZURE OF TANGLE- LEG .- Thirty gallons of tangle-leg, of the worst description, were seized at the Hydah encampment yesterday and taken to the station-house.

THE BODY OF CAPT. JAMIESON .- Captain Irving offers $100 reward for the recovery of the body of Capt. Archibald Jamieson, of the ill-fated steamer Cariboo.

Auction .- At 11 o'clock to-day Mr. Mc-Crea will sell a quartity of English and American case goods, liquors, groceries. &c.

Among the passengers by the Otter on Saturday was Bishop Hills. The U. S. revenue cutter Jeff. Davis arrived in the harbor yesterday afternoon.

The mail-steamer is expected to-day
